A SKY AND SEA FIGHTING TEAM—A Lockheed WV-2 radar plane flies above the carrier U.S.S. Oriskany and its brood of fighter planes somewhere in the Pacific. The WV-2 can direct carrier-based fighter planes into battle if it spots danger in front of a fleet with its electronic equipment. The long range of the WV-2's enable them to spend many hours scouting on behalf of surface ships far at sea, say officials of the U.S. Navy for whom they are being built. The huge aircraft operate from shore bases.

French Planes Blast Rebels Flooding Dien Bien Phu Roads

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—French fighters and bombers today heavily attacked key roads leading northeastward from the fallen fortress of Dien Bien Phu. The roads are jammed with thousands of

Communist-led Vietminh troops and big Molotov truck convoys. Dropping 1,000-pound high explosive bombs and heavily strafing, the warplanes centered their attacks on the road from Tuan Giao, 27 miles northeast of Dien Bien Phu, and running eastward to Na San, which is 117 miles west of Hanoi.

It was at Na San in the winter of 1952 and 1953 that the French as at Dien Bien Phu, had for months put up a valiant resistance against encircling and vastly superior Vietminh forces.

Evacuated In August

The French evacuated Na San Aug. 11, 1953 and the Vietminh quickly moved in to use it as a base for pursuing their conquest of the pro-French Thai peoples country and the eventual attack upon Dien Bien Phu.

The French high command reported today warplanes had cut the road between Tuan Giao and Na San in 10 places.

Vietminh troops and convoys were reported moving two ways today: Into and out of the Thai country of northwestern Indochina. Those going in may be for reinforcing Vietminh positions in the Thai capital of Lai Chau, 200 miles northwest of Hanoi, which the Vietminh occupied after the French pulled out Dec. 11, 1953. They also may be intended to take over occupation of the Dien Bien Phu sector from the battleworn rebels who spearheaded and survived the 57 days of assaults upon the French Union fortress.

Dien Bien Phu, on a road leading southward to the royal Lao capital of Luang Prabang, might be used as a takeoff base by the Vietminh for a fresh invasion of the little mountain kingdom.

Hundreds of Molotov trucks moving along the roads in the Thai country were heavily hit last night with rockets by French fighters and again today by bombers, pilots reported touching off big explosions and destroying many of the convoys.

Cars Slightly Damaged In Route 30 Mishap

An auto mishap on Route 30, two miles north of East Liverpool at 7:10 p.m. Sunday caused minor damages to the two cars involved. Patrolmen said an auto driven by Vera C. Longstreth, 29, of Cuyahoga Falls ran into the rear of a car operated by Floyd D. Hall, 43, of Wellsville as Hall stopped in a line of traffic.

The woman said she applied her brakes but took her foot off the pedal when a youngster in her car started to fall off the front seat.

Ohio Presidential Nominating Hit

Delegate Selection Termed 'Antiquated'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio State University researcher says he has found Ohio law on selection of delegates for national presidential nominating conventions "antiquated" and badly in need of revision.

Prof. E. Allen Helms of the political science department at Ohio State, reported results of a research study of nominating politics in Ohio in 1952.

Studied Nominating Plans

He had served as state director of a nationwide cooperative research project sponsored by the American Political Science Assn. Aim of the study was to determine how well American political nominating procedures functioned in making the will of the people known at the nominating conventions. Results of the survey are being published today by the Johns Hopkins Press, Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Helms said "De found the Ohio law regarding selection of delegates pretty antiquated and in need of revision." He said actual operation of the law is quite different from what was intended originally.

No Test of Strength

"We don't really have a test of strength in this state," he said. "What we have is a favorite son to whom the delegates are pledged." He said neither President Eisenhower nor Adlai Stevenson appeared on the Ohio ballot.

Dr. Helms said as a general rule, party leaders tend to determine results rather than the rank and file of party members. He agreed with others in the group of political analysts that the advent of television and the impact of close-up views of the actual convention proceedings may well cause wide spread changes in the way Americans will nominate their future presidents.

Police Investigate 3 Traffic Mishaps

One driver was cited as the result of one of three auto mishaps which occurred in the city over the weekend.

Fred Beglau, 47, of RD 1, Leetonia, was charged with failing to yield the right of way after a two-car collision in the 900 block of S. Ellsworth Ave. at 10:13 a.m. Saturday.

Police said the southbound Beglau auto made a left turn in front of an approaching car driven by Charles A. Ivan, 20, of 528½ Aetna St.

Considerable damages were caused to the right sides of both cars, police report.

Autos driven by Robert T. Lindner, 56, of RD 1, Leetonia and William F. Steves, Jr., 25, of 291 Ohio Ave. collided under the traffic light at S. Lincoln Ave. and Franklin St. at 9:04 a.m. Saturday.

Moderate damage was done to each auto.

A car driven by Rev. George A. Tabor, 74, of East Cleveland struck a "no parking" sign and scraped a tree on N. Ellsworth Ave. at 2nd St. Sunday at 12:30 p.m. causing minor damage to the auto.

The driver told police his foot slipped off the brake and onto the accelerator as he was making a left turn off E. 2nd St. onto N. Ellsworth Ave.

Sen. Dirksen Moves To Cut Army Hearings

Would Confine Public
Testimony To Stevens,
Senator McCarthy

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army today opposed a proposal by Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) to cut short the McCarthy-Army hearings. Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel, said he thought it would "do violence to justice."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) moved today to cut short the McCarthy-Army hearings by confining public testimony to that from Secretary of the Army Stevens and Sen. McCarthy.

Dirksen said any additional testimony necessary to determine the issues could be taken behind closed doors.

In the event of executive sessions, Dirksen suggested, transcripts of the testimony could be given to news reporters as was done in the Gen. Douglas MacArthur hearings. The hearings on President Truman's dismissal of MacArthur as Far Eastern commander in 1951 were behind closed doors.

Eliminated Security Data

The purpose on that occasion was to guard against public disclosure of information affecting the national security. The transcripts released to the press were censored to eliminate any security information.

Dirksen's motion was made immediately after the Senate investigations subcommittee met for its 13th day of hearings.

Dirksen said it was up to the committee to determine the "truth or falsity" of the charges and counter charges exchanged by Sen. McCarthy and Army officials.

But testimony from principals other than McCarthy and Stevens probably would be largely repetitious, he contended.

Dirksen said he believes the committee can get the "remaining answers" to Army charges from McCarthy himself. He said the Army's case already had been "reasonably well ventilated."

Sen. McClellan (D-Ak.) asked Chairman Mundt (R-SD) to find out how the principals felt about the Dirksen proposal.

McCarthy said he would favor action to shorten the hearings so his regular investigating subcommittee could resume its task of hunting out Communists which McCarthy said "are known to be in defense plants and the government."

Would Oppose Proposal
But the Senator said he would oppose the Dirksen proposal unless it provided that the subcommittee (1) work on the McCarthy-Army investigation every day until the inquiry is ended or (2) the subcommittee be allowed to take up again its investigation of communism, on days when the subcommittee was not meeting on the McCarthy-Army investigation.

The subcommittee is operating under a rule which calls for all other work to be suspended until the present hearings are concluded.

This has kept McCarthy from pursuing hearings on his hunt for Communists in the government. McCarthy said he did not merely want to shift the inquiry behind closed doors, where the committee would meet only once or twice a week. He said that might drag out the inquiry instead of shorten it.

At one point McCarthy said he had "disturbing reports" of Communist infiltration of Army intelligence, which he wanted to investigate.

CAR DEMOLISHED AGAINST TREES.—Mrs. Harley Wisenbarger of Minerva died of a crushed chest when her automobile struck two trees, one of which is shown above, with such force early Sunday morning that big strips of bark were torn from the trees, even eight feet above the ground. Salem state patrolmen blamed the accident on Rt. 30 near Minerva to excessive speed.

Democrats Blast Ike's Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic demands for a change in America's foreign policy flared anew today in the wake of reports of free world setbacks in Europe and Asia.

Some minority party members criticized this country's allies. Others took swipes at the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign affairs, which in turn was defended by Republican leaders.

International problems were a possible topic at President Eisenhower's weekly conference with GOP congressional chiefs this morning.

Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.) said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery today that developments in Indochina and Geneva prove that this nation's "old allies," including Britain and France, no longer stand up with us in "resolute determination to oppose Communist aggression."

As a result, the Florida senator said, this country should "seek new allies" among friendly Latin-American nations and other countries that have stoutly resisted communism.

Calling for a complete shift in foreign aid and trade programs, Smathers said Latin-American nations such as Brazil, Chile, Peru,

An automobile accident on Route 30, just east of Minerva, at 2:15 a.m. Sunday morning took the life of a 48-year-old Minerva woman.

Mrs. Harley Wisenbarger of 408 Line St., Minerva, was pronounced dead on arrival at Canton Aultman Hospital of a crushed chest. Her auto, westbound on the U.S. highway at approximately 90 miles an hour, State Highway Patrolmen estimated, went off the right side of a curve and struck five objects before coming to rest on its top.

Flipped High In Air

Two mail boxes and part of a roadway sign were snapped off before the auto struck the roots of a large tree and was catapulted into the air and against a smaller tree. According to marks left on the second tree, patrolmen said the auto must have been almost eight feet off the ground when it struck.

The car traveled more than 400 feet after it left the roadway on the curve. Speed was the major cause of the mishap, patrolmen declared.

Bark was scraped from one side of the smaller tree in an area about six feet in height. The upper part of the trunk was split in two parts. Small limbs and leaves covered the demolished car.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Wisenbarger leaves two daughters Patricia Wisenbarger and Mary Katherine Crawford of the home; a son, John Crawford of Minerva; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Alberta King of Sebring; a stepson, Harley Wisenbarger Jr. of Summerfield; her stepmother, Mrs. Etta Thompson of Columbus and seven grandchildren.

She was a member of the Minerva Presbyterian Church and the Women's Bible Class and Women's Congregational Society of the church. She also belonged to the Minerva PTA.

Born in Mechanicstown, she spent all her life in that area.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Rutledge - Jackson Funeral Home in Minerva, with Rev. Milton Davis officiating. Burial will be in Mechanicstown Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Tuesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Strike Halts Home Building In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—Home building in greater Cleveland was hit today by a strike of 25,000 AFL building trades craftsmen seeking a pay raise.

Work on large building projects was affected only slightly. Major commercial and industrial contractors settled their wage dispute with all but one of the 18 unions involved by agreeing to raise hourly pay 12½ cents. Five cents of this raise is not effective until Nov. 1.

The painters' union, covered by a new two - year contract signed Saturday, continued on all jobs where possible.

The asbestos workers, demanding more than the 12½-cent pattern, pulled members off not only home building jobs but all construction, including commercial and industrial.

The Home Builders Assn. seeking to hold the line on housing construction costs, has refused to grant any pay raise this year. The association contends granting the increases the AFL Building Trades Council has won from the Building Trades Employers Assn., would raise the cost of a new house by at least $400 and cause demand to fall off.

Industry leaders estimate $45,000,000 worth of construction is affected by the stoppage.

Viet Nam Group May Also Oppose French Proposal

Red Insistence On
'Phantom' Regimes
May End Talks

BULLETIN

GENEVA (AP)—The delegate of Communist-led Vietnam took the floor in the Indochinese peace talks today and an unofficial Communist source said he rejected the French terms for an armistice in Indochina.

GENEVA (AP)—The Vietminh was reported ready to give the Communist answer today to France's plan for an armistice in Indochina.

Informed quarters said British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov agreed this morning the nine-party Indochinese conference could go ahead without waiting for a solution of the procedural snag on inviting additional participants.

Vietminh Deputy Premier Pham Van Dong, right hand man of Communist leader Ho Chi Minh, was understood to be ready to speak on the French proposal at the opening of this afternoon's session. The Communists already have dropped hints they would reject the plan submitted at the opening session of the Indochinese talks Saturday.

The U. S. delegation has taken the position the French plan should be supported as a basis for negotiations, but that its judgment must be reserved on details until all other proposals are before the conference.

Oppose Partition

A Vietnamese spokesman said the French proposals were communicated to the Viet Nam delegation only a few hours before they were presented to the conference, leaving the Vietnamese no time to formulate their views. The spokesman said it seemed "at first sight" that the proposals would lead in effect to partition of Viet Nam, a solution "to which all Vietnamese are bitterly opposed."

He said French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault spoke "exclusively in the name of the French government, not in the name of Viet Nam."

"We will make our own proposals in due course," he said.

Although Eden and Molotov were reported to have agreed the main peace talks could go ahead, there was no indication the Communists had any plans for giving up their demands for the inclusion of two newly created "phantom" governments of Cambodia and Laos in the conference. The Eden - Molotov meeting lasted only 15 minutes.

Insist Rebels Attend

Western sources said Red insistence that rebel movements in Laos and Cambodia be invited to the talks might wreck the Indochinese negotiations at the Far Eastern conference.

Foreign Minister Pham Van Dong of the Communist-led Vietminh raised the question at the opening Indochinese session, referring to the two groups as the resistance governments of Khmer (Cambodia) and Pathet Lao (Laos).

American intelligence officers said the so-called governments had been created early in April for the purpose of stalling the Geneva conference. French sources describe them as scattered gangs of brigands roaming remote interior areas of the two Indochinese kingdoms.

Pham Van Dong's demand was

U.S. To Continue Indochina Aid

Pentagon Sees Fall Of Fort As Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fall of Dien Bien Phu will leave unchanged the American program of military assistance to the French Union and Associated States in Indochina, a Pentagon spokesman said today.

The sea and air shipment of equipment and supplies and the assistance of aircraft technicians to keep flying the planes turned over to the free forces in Indochina by the United States will continue, the spokesman said.

There was no disposition to minimize the effect if the fall of the fortress should prove a forerunner to the loss of all Indochina. The latter, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said recently, could be "a prelude to the loss of all Southeast Asia."

The gap in the free world's defense perimeter then would extend from the Chinese Nationalist refuge on Formosa far to the westward near Pakistan. Although some individual states in Southeast Asia might continue to lean toward the West, they would be surrounded by other states either nervously neutral or definitely under Red control.

Whether there is continued fighting in Indochina or a truce, as is now proposed by the French, the United States intends to maintain its air and sea strength in the general Far East area — ready to deal with any violation of the truce in Korea or to be used to implement international policy decisions elsewhere.

Although Army strength is being reduced by at least two divisions in Korea, the White House and Pentagon have stated that over-all strength in planes and ships and mobile ground forces will be kept up.

Deployed in the Far East — Korea, Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines — are about 20 wings of the Air Force. These currently include three medium bomb outfits, now equipped with piston-engined B29s but which, under a unit rotation plan announced over the weekend, eventually will be replaced by B47 jet bombers. Also in the Far East Air Force are eight fighter wings, two light bomb wings, a tactical reconnaissance wing and half a dozen troop carrier wings.

The Navy likewise has announced that the strength of the 7th Fleet is being kept at approximately the level of Korean War days. Normally the 7th Fleet includes about two Essex class carriers, two or three cruisers, a number of destroyers, some submarines and various amphibious and command craft for landing operations. There have been no battleships in the 7th Fleet since the end of Korean hostilities and the need for heavy shore bombardment.

American airmen, watching the Indochina conflict, express belief that the troubles of the French and Vietnamese, particularly in the instance of Dien Bien Phu, arose out of three shortages:

3. Of planes—although without enough pilots an increase in the number of planes would be useless.

Humphrey Optimistic On Lowered Vote Age

Transit Strike Grips Pittsburgh

Huge Traffic Jam Expected Downtown

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh area commuters felt the first real impact of a day-old transit strike today as city officials braced themselves for a long traffic headache.

Mayor David L. Lawrence, who worked vainly to keep 2,700 trolley and bus operators on the job beyond the strike deadline yesterday morning, warned the more than two million residents of Pittsburgh's greater metropolitan area

"the transportation curtailment may last months."

The operators, members of Division 85, AFL Amalgamated Assn. of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, walked off the job after Pittsburgh Railways Co. rejected demands for a 30-cent hourly pay increase. It was the first mass transit strike here since 1924.

Emergency measures were made to handle the thousands of autos expected to jam the already harassed traffic lanes in the city's business district. Mayor Lawrence ordered parking regulations relaxed.

The company which runs about 3,000 trolleys and buses into the business district each day estimated it transports 200,000 workers and thousands more shoppers daily.

All business places, factories and offices planned to operate as usual — meaning thousands of employees, at least, would depend on autos to reach their jobs.

Attendants at parking lots said yesterday's business was no heavier than usual for a Sunday. Church attendance also was reported normal.

Already repair work on one big traffic artery leading to the city has been ordered suspended for the duration of the strike.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said it was adding several coaches to regular commuter trains and will put an additional 20 commuter trains on to take care of persons stranded in the suburban districts.

Union and company representatives met briefly in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon but said no progress was made. It was after that the mayor warned the strike may be a long one. He said: "The two parties involved are far apart."

C. D. Palmer, president of Pittsburgh Railways, said the union demands would have cost the company an additional three million dollars a year. He said the company could make no monetary improvements over the contract which expired April 30. He declined to submit the dispute to arbitration.

The operators earn an average $1.92 an hour and receive an additional six cents an hour under a cost of living clause. A company offer to add the six cents to the base pay rate was rejected by a union membership vote.

Ladies Night Is Observed By Boosters

LEETONIA — Ladies Night was observed at the regular meeting of the Booster Club at the High School Wednesday evening. A film portraying the growing and care of roses in the Perkins Botanical Gardens at Newark, N.Y., was shown. Police Chief Cress of Youngstown presented a talk to the capacity crowd.

In a short business session, the Boosters took action which may result in a swimming program for children of the local school district. During the past three years the program had been sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, who recently voted to discontinue sponsorship, stating it was somewhat outside the scope of its activities.

The Boosters will take the lead in attempting to renew the program here. They have intimated they will try to enlist the aid of the three organizations which have been sponsoring the monthly "Teen-Age Dances." This would make sponsorship of the swimming program a four-way affair involving the Boosters, American Legion, O.S.I. and the Eagles.

AOMIC Michael Carey arrived here Wednesday for his first visit in four years. He is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Carey. His wife and children will arrive here from Wisconsin this weekend. He is on a 20 day leave.

THE KINDERGARTEN Mothers Club will hold the final meeting of the current school year at the High School building at 8 tonight. All mothers of kindergarten children, even though they are not members of the club, are urged to attend the meeting and help plan for the kindergarten graduation.

Kindergarten graduation ceremonies will be held in the Washingtonville school May 26 and the children of the South Side kindergarten will have their exercise in St. Paul's Lutheran Church May 27. The picnic for all kindergarten children will be held June 1.

Baby Smothers While Mother Has Dinner

DALLAS (AP) — While Mrs. Jean Hall was enjoying a Mother's Day dinner in her honor yesterday with her husband and six of her children, her 3-month-old baby Phillip smothered to death in the next room.

After dinner the father, Henry, discovered the baby lying face down on a feather pillow. He and a fire department inhalator team were unable to revive it.

"We heard the baby wake up and my wife wanted to leave the table to tend it," he said. "We all made her stay and finish her strawberry shortcake because it was Mother's Day."

State Patrol Advises Drivers Check Cars

"Check your car — check accidents today. Tomorrow may be too late!"

In these words Cpl. Edward Mallery of the Salem State Patrol Post stressed the importance of having cars safety checked without delay.

"Accidents don't wait to happen," he said. "Bad brakes, worn out windshield wiper blades and other neglected parts will let you down in an emergency. And an emergency can occur at any moment."

Mallery advised Salem motorists to check the following ten points on their cars, and in that manner to check accidents.

1. Brakes should take hold evenly on all wheels. The hand brake should be able to hold the car on any hill. Brake fluid should be clean and at the proper level.
2. Headlights should be at the proper level for maximum road illumination and minimum glare. Lenses should be clean and reflectors bright.
3. Rear and stop lights should

- operate properly. Directional signals should also be checked.
4. Tires should be checked for wear and proper inflation.
5. Wheel alignment should be checked.
6. Exhaust system and muffler should be completely checked.
7. Windshield wipers should be operating with blades checked after the heavy winter to see they are "live" and clean.
8. Glass should be clear, free of cracks or discoloration. Windshield should also be checked for unauthorized stickers.
9. Horn should be audible for 200 feet.
10. Rear-view mirror should give a clear view of the road behind.

The U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization thinks that it should be possible to produce 50 per cent more rice on areas now planted in that crop.

Sanity In Athletics

A new athletic conference to be based on an agreement among the presidents of four Cleveland colleges marks the spread of the East's Ivy League doctrine into the Middle West.

The doctrine is simply that athletics should be part of the college curriculum, not a series of spectacles staged for public appeal and financial profit.

Most of the colleges in Cleveland have tried to get into the spectacle business at one time or another in the last quarter of a century. All of them have seen the outcome of professionalized athletics either on their own campuses or the campuses of other institutions.

It always brings about a distortion of the college's function of well-rounded education. Professionalized athletics invariably turn into a tail that wags the academic dog. Only a college or a university willing and able to deal with the problems that grow out of lending its name to an aggregation of public entertainers under relentless pressure to win should fool with professionalized athletics.

The movement to make a clean break with the practice is spreading. It started in the East with the Ivy League whose members, significantly, were also among the first to experiment with the public entertainment possibilities of subsidized athletes and big-time coaches. There will continue to be colleges and universities willing to lend their names to the staging of public spectacles; there is big money in it.

It is reassuring to see institutions weary of trying to resolve the issue between over-emphasized athletics and under-emphasized mental development getting out of the entertainment business and into their proper business of furnishing athletic instruction and physical training to all students who want them.

The Army-McCarthy Hearings

There have been times since the beginning of the televised hearings on the Army-McCarthy issue before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations when it seemed nothing else of interest was happening in the whole world.

But it should not be overlooked that much of the extraordinary interest in these hearings has been in connection with the charges and counter-charges and is connected, instead, with an appraisal of a function of government which is being revealed to millions for the first time. It would be an understatement merely to say that most viewers are astonished by their first look at an investigative hearing. They are disconcerted, because what they are seeing is not in fact a typical hearing at all. There never has been another one like it.

It is half legislative hearing and half legal trial. There is a weird admixture of rules of evidence and rules of catch-as-catch-can.

The hearing has nothing remotely to do with getting background information for the purpose of passing a law, which is the primary purpose of most legislative hearings.

It is only vaguely connected with anything which might prove to be illegal, which distinguishes it from such a hearing as the Teapot Dome investigation of 1924.

What it is, in effect, is a review before television cameras of a bitter clash between official personalities. It may be a preview of what is in store if public figures in this republic make a practice of airing their differences via television — and to say the initial impact is proving to be disconcerting to an astonished public is only to acknowledge what lately has been so obvious that the participants, themselves, are concerned about it.

These county governments are under strong pressure to increase such services as fire and police protection, zoning regulations, garbage service, street lighting and, through proper agencies, public education. As pressure grows, the shape of the future becomes visible. County governments will perform urban functions in many cases; they are beginning to do this now. A few have augmented their county boards with executive managers.

America's cities are the backbone of industrial productivity and wealth, besides being the focal points of culture and all forms of social activity. Their natural growth cannot be stopped by artificial boundary lines and legislative restrictions.

An Ohio college asks parents not to give students auto. Gas and midnight oil don't seem to mix very well.

TV Programs

Family 'Pact' Might Solve Problems

What's wrong with television, anyhow? Why can't it do a good job for the kids? Does so much of it have to be murder, mayhem and mediocrity? Don't any of the producers and sponsors of television programs have children?

These questions must keep popping into your mind if you are a parent and have a TV set in the home.

Other more specific questions are: What can be done for a child who has TV-induced nightmares that she is trapped behind the Iron Curtain? How about the boy who prefers to glue his eyes on the TV screen instead of ambushing a few himself out in the back yard? How can the youngsters be made to do their homework?

Sort out the various questions and worries and, according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine, you probably will find that you have three specific gripes about television as it affects children:

1. Mediocre programs.
2. Too much violence.
3. No do-it-yourself stimulus.

Better than any other medium, television could encourage youngsters to make, build, paint, sew or do things, but few programs stimulate that sort of follow-through.

Any parent watching his child watch TV is bound to yearn for better fare. Originally, parents thought that the problem would solve itself. They felt that after a year or so of living with the set, the kids would get bored by it and would turn again to playing outdoors, acquiring hobbies, reading.

SAD TO SAY, it hasn't turned out that way. A survey made in Evanston, Ill., is indicative of the trend. In 1950, when TV was still young, Evanston children of elementary school age spent 21 hours a week in front of the TV screen. Last year these same children, with at least 36 months of TV behind them, were spending 23 hours weekly with television.

Stop blaming the producers and sponsors of programs for all the troubles. They are merchants of entertainment, guided by what they think the public wants. If the demand is for horror tales, that is what they will supply. When the demand begins to reflect more discriminating taste, the product will get better.

Meanwhile, don't get mad at the kids. Ten- and eleven-year-olds love blood-chillers and whodunits, as well as Westerns. Teen-agers steep themselves in everything from sophisticated drama to lurid yarns of passion and tragedy.

The kids just don't know any better. If they did, they wouldn't be kids any more.

The kids can't help themselves, and the TV industry is hog-tied by audience surveys and preferences, so the main group left to deal with the problem is parents.

PARENTS CAN be divided into four different classifications according to their attitude about television. This is the way a Harrisdale, N. Y., educator — long a student of TV and children — brackets them.

Type No. 1 The adamant won't have it in the house type parents. They early perceive the menace that TV can be, and they stand firm against it. It never crosses their threshold.

Type No. 2 The we-know-best parents. They bring the set into their home and then proceed to control it with an iron hand. Turn it on when Papa says yes; turn it off when Mama says so.

Type No. 3. The absolutely enthusiastic type. These parents welcome television as the answer to all their child raising problems. Members of this group are prone to say, "We never have to worry where the kids are when they're watching television."

Type No. 4. The let's-make-the-best-of-it parents. They realize that TV is here to stay. They recognize it as having a great potential for communication, enlightenment and education. They try to use it sensibly.

Type 4 parents are probably the most realistic and therefore have the best chance of weathering the TV crisis successfully.

If you are about to buy a set, the first thing you should do is call a family council.

FACE THE PROBLEM squarely before the set arrives, and there will be fewer argument later. Agree on answers to these questions:

Where should we put it? In the living room the set inevitably will dominate the routine of the entire household. In the playroom, the den or the dining room, it is less conspicuous.

When can it be turned on? Cut-off hours should be definitely established so there are no arguments about bedtime and homework.

Which programs should we look at? This calls for long and thorough discussion. Find out in advance which programs are good. Preselection can prevent later controversy, but don't be hidebound about it.

Who's in charge? If responsibility is fixed ahead of time, disputes will be less frequent.

If you now own a set, you may have a different and harder problem to lick — the reforming of present bad habits, including your own. The guidance must come from you. You have to take the initiative and set a good example. If you have been looking at the set to the exclusion of every other worthwhile activity, then what do you expect your children to do?

GIVEN GOOD viewing habits and decent programs, TV can be a wholesome influence on children. From book publishers and librarians have come encouraging reus-can to stimulate children's reading. The dean of a Detroit music conservatory reported recently that TV has boomed demand for private music lesson in the home.

Many schools, realizing that they can't ignore television, have woven it into the curriculum. They encourage classroom discussion of worth-while programs. They base research projects, scrapbooks and field trips on special assignment TV programs, such as the Science Show.

What's wrong with television, anyhow? The answer is that nothing is wrong with television. There is plenty of evidence, though, that TV can be wonderful if enough people — particularly parents — work to make it so.

Health To You

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Some Treatments Help Chronic Sciatica

Mrs. V. writes that for months she has been suffering with sciatica and that some days after merely walking around the house, she suffers from it.

She also says that rubbings, heat, hot baths, and shots have been of no avail, and wonders if there is anything else she can do. She adds that she is 60 years old.

This is indeed a distressing condition, and I can only answer by discussing sciatica in general terms.

The sciatic nerve passes down the back of the leg from the buttocks to the heel. Inflammation of this nerve or true sciatica can come from any one of many causes, including diabetes, certain kinds of vitamin deficiencies or as a complication of arthritis of the spine.

When the sciatic nerve is subjected to pressure, either where it comes out of the spine itself from some diseased condition there or from inflammations in the neighborhood of the nerve such as a muscular rheumatism or even some inflammation or disease within the abdominal cavity itself. Tumors can produce sciatic pain.

Infection elsewhere in the body like an abscessed tooth, sometimes appear to be responsible. Whenever the cause can be discovered and removed or treated, improvement usually results.

Controlling diabetes, remedying vitamin deficiency or removing an abscessed tooth may bring about complete relief from the symptoms. However, sometimes the cause cannot be found at all or these measures fail.

Some cases of sciatica are apparently produced by a hernia of a cartilage-like substance lying between the vertebrae. This is sometimes called the "disc."

If, as is too often the case, no cause can be discovered, the injection of a local anesthetic or salt solution may relieve the pain. Manipulation, together with other measures of physical therapy, are often useful. Special exercises and X-ray treatments have also been employed with success.

Grave Marker

McCarthy And The Secret Letter

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yes, indeed, Ray Jenkins agreed with Sen. McCarthy that the senator was within his rights in refusing to reveal the name of his informant. So did Sen. Murd (R-SD), presiding at the McCarthy-Army hearings.

Jenkins agreed with McCarthy so fast he must either have thought this problem through before, but on grounds more thorough than he has yet disclosed, or he just started talking without realizing its full meaning.

Under oath McCarthy had told the Senate subcommittee investigating his row with Army officials that an Army officer had given him information on spying sent by the FBI to the Army confidentially and intended for no one but the military.

McCarthy not only said he would not reveal the officer's name but used the occasion to promise not to reveal the names of any other employees of the executive branch who might give him information.

When Joseph N. Welch, special counsel for the Army, questioned McCarthy's right to withhold the officer's name, Jenkins said McCarthy was justified. But Jenkins, special counsel for the McCarthy-Army hearings, didn't go into the deeper problem involved:

1. Did this officer violate a law by condensing into a 2 1/2-page "letter" the 15-page FBI memorandum to the Army on its investigation into espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.? It's not clear yet whether he violated a law or didn't.

If it is stated by the Justice Department that this man did violate a law, will McCarthy still refuse to name him? That would put him in the position of covering up for a law violator.

2. Was McCarthy himself in violation of any law (1) in receiving such information and (2) in attempting to make that information public at the Senate investigation in order to bolster his charge the Army was lax in Communist-hunting?

For, although he was chairman of the Senate committee investigating communism in the government, McCarthy had never been authorized by President Eisenhower or anyone else in the executive branch to receive this information.

Whether or not a law was violated, this episode in the McCarthy-Army dispute hits the heart of the problem of maintaining orderly government: the separation of powers between Congress and the executive branch of the government.

McCarthy says his officer-informant's motives were entirely patriotic in giving him the information. He says the officer thought the Army was too slow, or worse, in rooting out Communists. It's possible the man's motives were malice, revenge, neurosis or something else not patriotic at all. So long as his identity is secret, the government may never learn for itself the man's motives.

Any orderly attempt by the President to judge what is necessary for the country's welfare—for instance, secrecy on the investigation of spies until the investigation is finished and the spies caught — breaks down if this secret search is revealed outside the agency conducting the search.

Former President Truman and

Eisenhower have both withheld much security information from Congress for various reasons: to be sure innocent people are not smeared, investigations messed up, and that Congress is not interfering with the work and responsibility of the executive branch.

In this instance McCarthy was defying the executive branch, in effect encouraging other employees to pump security information to him.

Atty. Gen. Brownell, asked by the Senate subcommittee if McCarthy's information in this case could be made public, said no, that it involved matters of security.

In the face of this turnaround, McCarthy again defied the Eisenhower administration by demanding Brownell be brought before the committee to explain. Now Brownell has been asked if any part of the McCarthy information could be made public. Brownell hasn't answered that yet.

This struggle over the security information brought back into rigid focus what may have been lost sight of in the wordy hearings: that the basic quarrel between McCarthy and the Army is the struggle between him and the administration.

They would do the same thing for nothing if no money were forthcoming. They were born to be what they are and are simply being true to their birthright.

That is why Joe Laurie Jr. could write in his last will and testament that he was thankful to all the world for the laughs and pleasures it had given him. He really was thankful. It also had given him some aches and pains, but they did not go with the act.

The first rule of entertainment is to leave them laughing. Joe Laurie Jr., with his price-less tag line, left some of laughing through tears of tenderness. What would we do without the clowns who keep us from turning into sodden lumps?

Uncle Et Says

It looks like we've got a weapon of frightening power and can give science full credit for the H-bomb, at least until Senator McCarthy starts to investigate it, says Arch Neabrite.

At a mixed party, says Aunt Molly Harmsworth, you can always pick out the married and unmarried couples. The married ones can never agree on when it's time to go home.

As the tobacco companies lengthened their cigarettes, they apparently thought they had to lengthen their radio and TV commercials to match, but a lot of people could have struggled along without either.

So They Say

Sometimes it is necessary to take risks to win peace just as it is necessary to take risks to win victory. The chances for peace are usually bettered by letting a potential aggressor know in advance where his aggression could lead. Secretary of State Dulles.

Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

An Appeal To Ike

Dear President Eisenhower: Despite the decision of the probers not to shorten the Washington TV program, the essential facts seem to have been in long ago and I think an exasperated public wishes that you, as a golfer and a military man, would in some way knock their noggin's together and end the show. As a golfer you know both sides are too deep in the rough to get out. As a great general of the armies you know this is one of the worst battles in history, with both sides surrounded.

The foremost question being asked by Mr. and Mrs. America is this: If American can't settle a television hassle which is getting nowhere, how can it be expected to settle world problems at Geneva or in U.N.? If it can't bring peace between a few Pentagon civilians and a Senate subcommittee, what chance has it of getting to first base in the all important crisis in Korea and Indochina?

When you made the channel crossing in the world war you would never have stood for a TV or radio show getting priority. You would have enduring no "Button, button, who's got the transcript?" games on Omaha Beach. When you swung across Europe you would have sounded off against any attempt to revive old-time vaudeville in your path.

You licked Hitler and nobody dared to detract from the job by staging a battle for microphones and a chance to cry, "Would you mind repeating the question?" America is in almost as great danger this minute. The threat is in some ways worse.

Does Barnum fight Bailey? Is a puppet show proper while the boy stands on the burning deck? Would a "whodunit" have been a good thing while David was fighting Goliath? Is the fight on a four-alarm fire halted while the firemen drop the hose and stage the annual minstrel show?

The cry that goes up from the throats of millions of Americans every day as they tune in and find the TV hearings still on is, "Oh, no-o-o!"

Nobody's ahead. Neither side can win. The longer it continues the worse both sides look.

I'll bet Ray Jenkins, the committee counsel and guide, can tell you this minute that it's a tie game, with nobody getting anywhere and that the national interests would be best served by a decision to sidetrack it as a show that benefits no one except the electric light company, the photographers and the official stenographers.

All good wishes, Elmer.

ALICE IN WASHINGTON

'Twas brillig and the slithy toves

The mood of Steve Brodie, surface cars, bell-clangings and pedestrians in brown derbies is gone forever. The bridge has six traffic lanes and face-lifting has been so complete that old-timers won't believe it until they get confirmation.

Hoover Fought Political System; Molded Weak FBI Into Top Agency

Editor's Note — When he took over as acting director 30 years ago, J. Edgar Hoover found the FBI loaded with political hacks whose only qualification was friendship with a local committeeman. Here's the story of how he has raised it to the nation's top law enforcement agency and a behind-the-scenes look at the way the FBI works, day to day.

By DON WHITEHEAD

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover's greatest pride on this, his 30th anniversary as FBI director, is this:

"I'm proudest of the fact that we've made law enforcement an honorable profession. In all my career that achievement has made me happiest.

"By observing civil rights, by eliminating the third degree and the evil practices that once existed, we have achieved a standing in the country of which I'm proud. And it's largely due to the character of our personnel."

Hoover said he is hopeful the FBI will be divorced for all time from partisan politics and that his own successor will come from FBI ranks.

Looking back over the stormy years of FBI development, Hoover said in one of his rare interviews:

"I'm heartily in favor of promoting from within the bureau."

"When I took over the directorship in 1924, FBI agents held their jobs because of political ties. They were political appointees, and the only requirement was 'Do you have the endorsement of your committeeman?'"

"I stopped that. All my assistants and associates have come through the ranks. My feeling is that my successor, when the time comes, should be designated from the ranks. Not on any basis of seniority, but on ability."

"We have developed some fine executives within the FBI. You can't buy the kind of energy and devotion they've given to the bureau."

The general impression has grown through the years that the FBI is a one-man show, largely because the name J. Edgar Hoover has become linked inextricably with the name FBI. Hoover does have the final decisions, but in the background is a 10-man brain trust through which Hoover works in directing his fight against crime, espionage and subversion.

Each morning at 10:30 Hoover's 10 top aides gather in what is known as "the executive conference." Associate Director Clyde Tolson is chairman in the absence of Hoover. With him are Assistants to the Director L. V. Boardman and Louis B. Nichols, and the assistant directors and division chiefs.

One member of the conference said: "There are no holds barred in our meetings. We thrash out policies and procedures within the framework of our responsibility. Each decision is arrived at by a vote. If there is a split vote—we must give the arguments on both sides to the director for his final decision."

"The director wants the best opinions even if they run counter to his own. He wants recommendations too on a course of action. Once a decision is made, then we close ranks and carry out the job."

Discussing this executive conference meeting, Hoover said: "I don't want yes-men. I must have the arguments for and against each question. I can't accept recommendations without reasons."

"We get everything out in the open. I will not stand for griping and grapevine gossiping. If anybody has got a gripe, I tell my people to go to someone who can do something about it or bring the gripe to me. I just won't have belly-aching behind the barn door."

Just what kind of a bureau did Hoover want to develop when he took over the directorship in 1924? What was his concept of FBI responsibilities?

"When I was a special assistant to the attorney general in the early '20s," he said, "I saw the defects in the evidence with which attorneys had to work. There was a need in the department for persons trained in the gathering of evidence."

"In our law schools we study subjects such as equity, evidence, procedures and codes. But I marvel at the lack of instruction on how to go out and build a case that will stand up in court."

"What I saw in 1919-20 was that cases were not built. Evidence was gathered haphazardly and with no continuity, although evidence is the basis for proving innocence or guilt."

"In the FBI, I tried to build on the basis of what you find in a large law office where one section deals with the trial, another with briefs, another with evidence, etc. After all, the Department of Justice is just a large law office for the American people and in the FBI we have the agency that gathers the facts."

"We don't try the case. We don't evaluate the evidence. We merely act as the service agency."

"I thought our agents should have legal training or be experienced in accounting, and that is our standard."

"There's still a crying need today in our law schools in teaching the gathering of evidence. There is a large gap in the legal training. We have requests from law schools for agents to lecture classes on FBI methods of gathering evidence."

"This lack in our law schools is a glaring deficiency and we see it plainly when young lawyers come into the FBI. They must learn this phase of the law in our own training school."

Hoover recalled the first months of his career with the FBI. "There were some marvellous fights inside the bureau," he said. "Some of the old-timers complained we were getting 'Boy Scouts' to do the work that could be entrusted only to the two-gun men."

Those first years were ones of reorganization, building up a corps of agents trained in law and accounting, and establishing uniform rules of conduct and procedure. Then came the gangster era—the wild rampage of gang rule, gang murders, kidnapping, bank robberies and reigns of terror by underworld mobs working with crooked politicians, crooked courts, crooked police officers.

The kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., stirred the nation. And then "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Vern Miller and Adam Richetti slaughtered four police officers in trying to free a pal, Frank Nash, from their custody. This was the bloody "Kansas City Massacre" of June 17, 1933. Ironically, the hoodlums killed Nash too in the wild shooting.

In the breakdown of local law enforcement, enraged citizens de-

Buick now outsells all other cars in its price class and above

You've probably noticed it right in your own neighborhood.

Bright new Buicks appearing here, there, everywhere. And more and more of them in recent weeks.

Know what's happening?

Folks in growing numbers — (and maybe you'll be joining them soon!) — are finding Buick styling, performance and value far too wonderful to pass up.

So Buick is selling at a record pace—outselling all other cars in its price class and above.

Matter of fact, latest figures for the first quarter of 1954 show that, in total national volume, Buick is outselling every other car in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

A look and a ride and a peek at the price tag will be all you'll need to know what's back of this best-selling success.

There's styling in Buick that's the greatest beauty advance in years — the very look of tomorrow—and with the spectacular panoramic windshield that's part and parcel of this dream-car look.

There's performance in Buick as never before—with record-high V8 power, with the sensationally smooth whip of Twin-Turbine Dynaflo,* with the buoyant ride of all-coil-springing, with a new precision of control and handling.

And there's value in Buick that's hard to match—with prices starting near the "low-price three"—prices that buy more Buick beauty and power and thrill and sheer automobile than smart money ever bought before.

How about you?

Are you ready, willing and waiting to be shown that this best seller called Buick is the buy of the year for you, too? Drop in this week, or give us a call, and we'll arrange a demonstration.

THE OHIO BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Those of us who keep tabs on such activities know that special Senate and House investigators are roaming the major cities, contacting the crusading anti-crime committees and searching out union welfare racketeering. We know that they will come in with a documented series of exposures which will embarrass some union officials not yet connected with any scandal.

Victor Riesel

Let no one on the outside gloat, for this only means that hundreds of thousands of honest, hard-working men and women and the unionism they believe in have been betrayed by those "operators" who are not really labor leaders but part of a new class of robber barons.

None of the decent men of labor should blast the investigators either, for the probers are doing their job in exposing men who deliberately stole from their union followers and refused to deal with the honest elements inside labor.

THOSE WHO BETRAYED labor did so for a mess of Cadillacs, lush entertainment, cash kickbacks, soft jobs and investments made for them by unscrupulous insurance agents.

To get at this high living these so-called men of labor had to reach past an honest insurance company organized for their own use by their own labor movement.

I write of this firm, the 27-year-old Union Labor Life Insurance Company, now because its officials met in Baltimore Monday and said some startling things.

The Board of Directors — all life-long labor men — is led by the AFL's first vice-president, the soft-spoken, wing-collared Matthew Woll, who set up the company after talking to the now legendary Sam Gompers about such a project.

"Our practices in the field have been beyond reproach," the board said. "Although at times we could possibly have fared better in a material way, we have refused to sacrifice our principles and ideals."

I asked Mr. Woll specifically what this meant — and he put it bluntly. No gifts of Cadillacs, no special $37.50 a day "advisory" jobs for labor leaders who would switch their union insurance to the company, no lush parties and no gay vacations in Florida as premiums for the premium business.

THIS COMPANY, owned by unions and rank-and-file members of the AFL and CIO has furnished "extensive questionnaires and detailed data to insurance depts and a congressional committee."

"We shall continue to give our unqualified support to investigations which aim to eliminate undesirable practices and persons," the company's officials said in Baltimore.

Why was such a company bypassed by some labor officials? It was launched by labor people. Practically every branch and division of labor is represented in the stock ownership, which was floated right from the AFL building in Washington in 1925.

To prevent control of the company from passing to a few stockholders, the number of shares of capital stock which any one trade union or any individual inside labor can hold was, and still is, restricted to a tiny percentage of the stock issue.

No one can sell his stock without first offering it back to the company.

TO STOP COMBINES from seizing control, a board of directors of 30 was set up — and no two members of the board can represent the same national or international union.

Furthermore, New York was selected as the first state in which to operate — because its state insurance laws are the toughest in the land. And only when these rigorous standards were met did the Union Labor Life Insurance Company expand its business into other states.

The company limits its dividends to its stockholders so it can pay greater returns to individuals and group policy holders. Therefore, all company earnings not needed to strengthen the reserves or to pay the limited dividends to stockholders are returned to the policy holders.

Under the company rules, the profits cannot be divided in any other fashion. The company gives its policy holders as good a break as any in the field. Why then did some of the men of labor go outside the house of labor to do business — and betray their own people?

They could have remained clean. The 64 million dollar question is, why didn't they?

In older age groups, prize winners were Lois and Dale Schaeffer, soap carving; Mark Starbuck and Dale Schaeffer, games; Marjorie Wagmiller and Judy Starbuck, blouses.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Edgerton, who served as judges with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hilliard, presented the awards.

Judy Starbuck, juvenile lecturer, was in charge of the following program: Roll call, "What we like to do best for or with our mothers or grandmothers"; piano solo, "The Sphinx"; Kathy Pemberton; jokes, Eva Starbuck; poem, "Mother"; Delores Schaeffer; and a story about Mother's Day read by Mrs. Don Starbuck. Each mother was presented a potted plant.

Also on the program were papers on Mother's Day read by subordinates, Mrs. William Marshall and Mrs. William Miskimins. Albert Capel was lecturer.

Lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wisler, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pemberton, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wagenhouser.

Irishman named Patrick Moriarty. Moriarty is the blackbrowed immigrant proprietor of a tavern two doors east of another establishment that shall be nameless except for the fact that it is secretly supervised by a guy called Toots Shor, one of nature's more hidden gentlemen.

Since their food dens are so close together, Moriarty and Shor naturally have about the same wholesome, heart-warming Damon and Pythias reward for each other as Bob Stevens does for Joe McCarthy. In some ways they are even closer, as they don't speak to one another.

But to get back to the corpse... There are plans to build a 35-story skyscraper on W. 51st street between Fifth and Sixth avenues, and Moriarty was one of those who got caught with his leashes down. As a matter of fact he never had a lease.

But he had to move (whether Toots Shor will also move is one of Manhattan's guessing games) so Pat threw a farewell party.

Pat Moriarty had taken over the tavern only four years before. It had been a rundown joint that many newspapermen used to visit — occasionally — in an evening. The tunes on the jukebox were strictly vintage (early 1920), the house bought every third drink in defiance of all business logic, and when a woman dared stick her head in the door the serious-minded students at the pinball machine shouted, "get out, you bum."

Moriarty took over the place on a gamble, helped by the money that his wife, Ruth, a schoolteacher, had saved. He threw out the elderly jukebox and the pinball machine. He put in good simple stern food, invited in women, ran a clean place where everybody felt welcome. In other words he wiped a wonderful saloon out of the world and turned it into a fine coeducational restaurant.

Pat threw a party on the house the other night, just before moving to a new location on Sixth avenue (west) near 52nd street—Howie's old place.

(Editor's note: The Metropolitan Museum of Art is at 82nd street and Fifth avenue, and the Statue of Liberty still stands in the bay-adv.)

It was a wonderful wake for a tavern. A heavy-browed dummy corpse with a 26-cent cigar (for a buck) lay in state by the door. It looked exactly like Moriarty, if one could envisage a bar proprietor lying flat on his back gazing dreamily up at a cash register on the ceiling.

The celebrants included some top advertising men, a group of Rockettes and technicians from the Radio City Music Hall, song writers and actors, writers from magazines like Colliers, Look, Time, Life, and two fellows who claimed they represented another magazine called the "Architectural Country Gentleman and Boy's Home Companion."

An innocent bystander from an impartial news service observed nothing unusual about this death of a fabulous tavern beyond this simple note:

"When the papier mache corpse found out that Moriarty was really buying at last, it sat upright in its coffin, called for a ham sandwich on rye and a double scotch, consumed them quickly, and then lay back complaining with a sigh, 'At Lindy's they include pickles.'"

Said Moriarty in farewell to 51st street:

"I am not a man to stand in the way of a skyscraper. But money-wise I am back where I started. I won't have a jukebox or a pinball machine in the new place. There will be no drinks on the menu, and no waiter will ever suggest to a customer that he should have a drink, but the drinks will be there if they ask for them. I hoped good friends follow good food."

"All I did before I have to do again."

WILLIAM HOLDEN tries to control a hysterical Barbara Stanwyck, emotionally distraught by news of the death of a man whom she has vainly loved. The scene is from M-G-M's filmization of the best-seller novel, "Executive Suite," brought to the screen with one of the greatest casts ever assembled for a motion picture. Together with Miss Stanwyck and Holden, the picture stars June Allyson, Fredric March, Walter Pidgeon, Shelley Winters, Paul Douglas and Louis Calhern with Dean Jagger, Nina Foch and Tim Considine. It is now playing at the State Theater.

Concord, Ellsworth Services Are Held

The second anniversary of Rev. D. Hamilton Funk's pastorate at the Concord and Ellsworth Presbyterian Churches was commemorated with renewal of vows on the part of both congregations and the pastor May 2.

Assisting in the service at the Concord Church was Mrs. Beatrice Morrow, pianist, and Miss Florence Handwork, choir director at both churches. Mrs. W. Ira Kessler is organist at Ellsworth and Mrs. James Brown, junior choir director.

Coincidental with the anniversary service at Concord was the dedicatory ceremony for the newly laid carpet in the sanctuary. The carpet was purchased for $2,000 through the efforts of the Women's Association of the church.

As president of the Women's Association, Mrs. Andrew Burt made the presentation speech and the pastor accepted the carpet on behalf of the congregation. Candles and flowers added to the setting.

During Rev. Funk's ministry at Concord the congregation has increased by 23. Ten have been baptized and three weddings have taken place.

In the pastor's two years at Ellsworth he has officiated at 22 infant baptisms; seven adult baptisms; and 58 members been added to the church roll. Three weddings occurred in the two-year period.

Rev. Funk attended the Protestant Conference on Scouting at Wooster April 28.

FAIR BOARD TO MEET

LISBON—The Columbiana County Fair Board will meet tonight at 8 at the courthouse to plan further improvements in the grounds. President Galen Green- isen of RD, Salem will conduct the business.

17 Take Field Trip Of Bird Study Club

Seventeen persons took part in the second field trip of the Salem Bird Study Club at Teegarden Sunday afternoon. Leaders for the trip were Albert T. Hartley of Columbiana and William C. Baker of Salem.

Not as many species of birds were seen as usually occur at this time of year. The cold weather of the past week held back the waves of migrating warblers intended for study.

A total of 40 species of birds were seen by the observers, among them the wood duck and the pileated woodpecker. Veteran observers say the woodpecker has increased in numbers in this locality in the past 25 years. Nests of the Louisiana water thrush and blue-gray gnatcatcher were among those seen.

A Bachman's sparrow was reported by Hartley. This is a southern species unknown in Ohio 60 years ago and the observation forms the third record for Columbiana County. In 1952 an unmated male of this species maintained territory for two months at the edge of Columbiana.

The next field trip of the club is scheduled Sunday, June 6 at Coal Hollow near Wellsville when birds which are seldom seen near Salem are to be studied. Dr. G. W. Richter of Canfield is to be leader. A meeting will be held Friday, June 4, at the Memorial Building when the ornithological geography of Columbiana County is to be discussed. Persons interested in bird study are invited to join the club.

He also asked continued encouragement for Greece and Turkey, which he said have demonstrated anti-Communist strength, and South Korea, Pakistan, the Philippines and Japan, which he described as similar outposts in the Pacific and Asia.

Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) said in a CBS television interview yesterday that "I think Indochina is lost" unless the French and Vietnamese are determined to continue the fight against the Communists there. He said U.S. intervention with combat troops would not succeed because Red China would then intervene with still not succeed because Red China larger forces.

Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, said during an NBC TV debate yesterday that the Eisenhower administration has so many foreign policy spokesmen the American people are confused. He predicted that by the end of this year Dulles would be out of office.

"Oh, no," was the immediate response from Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall. Hall went on to say a main Eisenhower administration accomplishment was to recognize communism "as a world menace," and that previous Democratic failure to do this led to the loss of China to the Communists.

Indochina

backed by Molotov and Communist Chin's Chou En-lai. The debate following started the opening meeting on Indochina for almost three hours.

A high American source said the next three days would tell whether there will be peace in Indochina. There was some speculation among Western sources that the Reds might be making a propaganda gesture and were not ready to stage a real fight that might disrupt the peace talks.

Nine delegations were present at the opening session—the Big Four, Red China, the Vietnamese, and the French-sponsored governments of the Indochina states, Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

The Reds at Saturday's session completely ignored French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's proposal for an Indochina truce to be guaranteed by the countries participating in the talks here.

The key provisions of the French plan were: (1) a halt in the fighting; (2) withdrawal of all forces from Cambodia and Laos except those of the French-recognized governments; (3) assembly of all opposing forces in Viet Nam, regular and irregular, in zones to be agreed upon by the conference; (4) liberation of war prisoners and civilian internees; and (5) international control of the execution of the agreement.

There was no immediate public reaction from the major powers, Western or Communist, to the proposals.

However, Red Chinese spokesman Huang Hua hinted his side would reject the proposal, although he did not say so outright. He said the French plan in "reality amounts to dissolving" the Vietnamese army and the "resistance governments" of Cambodia and Laos.

A U.S. spokesman said his delegation hoped the Communists "will give careful consideration to the French proposal."

Declining to say what the United States' position on the proposals would be, he said, "Detailed discussions at this time would be premature."

A high Western source said Bidault was under the strongest pressure from the government in Paris, reeling from the effect of the fall of Dien Bien Phu, to make peace in Indochina at any price.

This source added, however, that the French foreign minister was standing firm with the other Western Powers on the position that there could be no armistice without adequate military guarantees to make sure that all of Indochina did not fall into Red hands.

In a formal statement last night U.S. Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith called again for collective action by the free world to stem the surging tide of communism in Southeast Asia.

"We Americans," he said, "see clearly that our own future, our own prospects of remaining at peace are directly related to a basic principle — collective security. . . . The significance of Korea and Indochina is worldwide. Powerful forces are behind the complex influences that make these two areas the focus of potential war."

Salem Merchants Win Opener Over Lisbon Mining Co. 11-4

Locals Get 19 Hits; Foe, 3

New Waterford Is Next Opponent

Inaugurating their drive to win the loop championship for the second straight year, the Salem Merchants successfully opened their season Sunday afternoon at Centennial Park by blasting the Lisbon Industrial Mining Co. nine 11-4 in a County League contest.

Dave Kachner's congregation made a convincing start Sunday, exploding for 19 hits, while four Salem hurlers combined to hold the losers to only three bingles.

Jim Barnes, the second Merchant chucker, received credit for the victory. He also won his own game in the bottom half of the 5th inning with the score tied at two-all by blasting a long triple with two on to put Salem out in front for good.

Lisbon scored first, getting a run in the second inning off starter Lou Odorizzi. In Salem's third, Lou Tisch drove in Roger Stille from third base with a two-out single to tie the count.

In the fourth, Lisbon took another one-run advantage only to have Salem again knot the score as Clarence Lease laced out a single following base hits by Bob Loudon and Odorizzi.

THEN CAME the fifth and Barnes' triple. For good measure, the Merchants netted two more tallies in the sixth, one in the seventh, and four in the eighth.

Ed Mozina replaced Barnes on the mound in the seventh inning, and manager Kachner took over in the ninth. Jim Rutecki, the loser, pitched the first five innings for Lisbon, followed by his brother, Paul, who finished.

The Miners' cause was badly handicapped by six fielding errors. The batting stars of the day were Kirby Laughlin, with three hits including a double, Red Weingart, two hits including a double, Lou Tisch and Myron Stallsmith, each with a pair of safeties, and Barnes and Loudon with triples included in two hits apiece.

Play resumes in the eight-team circuit Wednesday with a full schedule of action. The Merchants will travel to New Waterford Wednesday, New Waterford yesterday defeated New Galilee 14-4 at New Galilee.

Salem's next home game will be May 23 at Centennial Park against the East Liverpool Riverfront Florists.

Mike Little Wins 1st Feature At Canfield

Taking the lead on the 21st lap, Mike Little of Johnstown, Pa., captured his first 25 lap feature stock car race here at the Canfield Speedway, Saturday night, before 4,550 fans. Little beat Tom Galvin of Warren, by three car lengths.

Tommy Kane of Youngstown was third. Pittsburgh's Dick Landrith came from last place to take fourth and Bill Forney, Boardman, fifth.

Saturday night's crowd witnessed the most spectacular crash of the season when Ron Cochran turned a complete flip and his car came down wedged between the fence and light pole. Nearly 15 feet of fence was smashed along with the pole. It took nearly 15 minutes for the wrecker to get the car untangled.

Next Wednesday night, the grand opening for midweek racing at Canfield, another outstanding program is in store. All proceeds from this event will be donated to the Heart Fund.

There will be two feature events. In the Hard Top feature, drivers will start western style or from a stand-still position. Nearly 30 new drivers will duel for honors in this race.

Spartans Hold Onto Big 10 Baseball Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—Michigan State's Spartans seized the Big Ten baseball lead at Iowa City and held on to it firmly at Minneapolis to conclude a triumphant weekend.

The Spartans beat Iowa 6-3 Friday, then handed the Gophers a double licking, 8-5 and 6-2, on Saturday.

The three victories topped MSC's Big Ten record to six wins in seven games and a lead of 79 percentage points over Michigan, one of the two defending champions.

The Wolverines, who lost the lead when Paul Giel and the Gophers beat them 3-2 Friday, came back with a double win over Iowa, 8-3 and 2-1. That gave them a 7-2 record and an even-up standing with Michigan State in the games-behind column, although they trail the Spartans percentage-wise.

In other doubleheaders Saturday: Illinois and Ohio State split, Illinois winning the opener 4-3 on Gerry Smith's eight-hit pitching and the Bucks taking the nightcap 7-1 as Harold Northrop hurled a four-hitter.

Indiana and Purdue also split, Indiana coming back for a 12-3 win, keyed by Stanley Denny's grand slam homer, after losing the opener 9-4.

Wisconsin beat Northwestern twice, 7-5 and 11-10.

Redlegs Split With Cardinals

Kluszewski Blasts Three Home Runs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ted Kluszewski hit three home runs yesterday as the Cincinnati Reds split a doubleheader with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Redlegs dropped the slambang first game 10-7 and edged out the Cards 6-5 in the second.

Big Ted, who smashed 40 homers last season for a club record, was hit on the hands by a pitched ball Thursday during a game with the New York Giants. He sat out the next two days.

"There's no reason in particular for hitting three homers," Klus said, "although the two days off may have helped."

Howie Judson started the day's chores on the mound but was blasted for five runs and six hits in 2 2-3 innings and was stuck with the loss. Art Fowler came to the mound in the second, walked in 4 runs that inning, and lasted four more. He gave up three runs and eight hits. Herm Wehmeier and Coky Valentine completed the job in the first game.

Bud Podbielan got credit for the win in the second contest, although he had to be yanked in the sixth after he faced two batters. Firemen Frank Smith allowed three hits and one run in four frames. Klu hit his first homer of the day in the opening frame to give the Redlegs a 3-0 lead. The Cards came back in the second with seven runs. Del Rice's and Stan Musial's homers accounted for five.

When the bases were loaded, Fowler walked Raschi to force in a run. It was Raschi's third straight win for the Cards.

Jim Greengrass homered over the right center field fence in the third with Gus Bell on base. But the Cards picked up one more run in the fourth and a pair in the ninth. Bobby Adams started a ninth inning rally with a leadoff single. Bridges following through with a double. At this point Raschi was replaced by Alpha Brazle. Successive ground outs by Bell and Klu allowed two runs to score and a third grounder by Greengrass ended the game.

The Redlegs scored two runs in the second inning of the second game. Johnny Temple walked and Wally Post and Hobie Landrith singled. Bud Podbielan forced Landrith, enabling Post to get home.

With Roy McMillan and Bell on base, Klu lined his second homer of the day in the third frame to give the Cincinnatians a 5-0 lead. In the top of the third, Card relief pitcher Ellis Deal homered. Wally Moon singled to left and Solly Hemus followed with a four-bagger. Klu's third homer of the day and his ninth of the season in the fifth gave the Reds their last run. The Cards picked up single tallies in the sixth and eighth.

Quakers Finish 10th Out Of 27 Schools In New Concord Relays

By SANDY HANSELL
Running against some of the top track schools in the state, the Salem Quakers finished 10th out of the 27 Class "A" schools entered Saturday in the New Concord relays at New Concord. The locals scored seven points.

The meet was won by Cleveland Lakewood; Mansfield was second, and Newark and Warren tied for third. Columbus South and Columbus Central tied for fifth.

The entry list also contained most of the top-notch cinder squads from Cleveland, Akron and Columbus. It marked the first time the New Concord Relays have been held since 1946.

Salem's two reliable aces, Captain Jerry Martin, miler, and high jumper Jack Alexander accounted for all of the Red and Black's scoring.

ALEXANDER TIED for first place in the high jump at 5-10, his best mark this year. However, he couldn't quite clear the bar at six feet.

Martin came through with the best effort of his career, a 4:41.3 in the mile, good enough for fourth place. The winning time was 4:32.6.

Indians Defeated By Orioles 2-1, Face Yankees Tonight

18 SPORTS Turley Wins 10-Inning Tilt

Ford, Reynolds, Lopat
To Oppose Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland's Indians, back from their best trip in years, open a 14-game home stand tonight with a joust against the New York Yankees.

And this time they face the best Yankee pitchers.

Manager Casey Stengel, who experimented with a pair of newcomers while losing to the Indians April 31 and May 1, is sending out Whitey Ford to pitch against Cleveland's Bob Lemon in the opener.

The New York manager will use Allie Reynolds and Ed Lopat against the Tribe's Early Wynn and Mike Garcia in the other two games of the series.

Yesterday's 2-1 loss to Baltimore was the fifth defeat against 10 wins on the road for the Tribe which is now in third place, one game behind the league-leading Detroit Tigers. Cleveland started the trip in sixth place, two games out of first.

Gil Coan singled home Neil Berry with the winning run in the bottom of the 10th as the trip ended. Berry got to first on George Strickland's error, was sacrificed to second and made third as Bob Young grounded out.

Bob Turley, the winning pitcher, scored the other run for the Orioles. After forcing Berry, who had singled, Turley ran home on Dick Kryhoski's single in the sixth.

Cleveland's lone score was in the seventh when Al Smith singled, got to third on two passed balls by Catcher Clint Courtney and then scored on Al Rosen's fly.

The loss was the second against one win for pitcher Art Houtteman.

For Turley it was revenge. He had a no-hitter going with one out in the ninth April 21 when Rosen singled and Larry Doby homered for a 2-1 Cleveland win. Turley now has a 3-2 record.

After three games against the Yankees, the Indians will play three against Washington, two against Philadelphia, two against Boston and four against Baltimore before moving to Chicago May 25.

Cleveland fans will get their first opportunity to see Rosen play first base. The league's most valuable player was moved around from third to make a place for rookie Rudy Regalado.

Regalado pulled a thigh muscle on the trip and will be on the bench, at least for the opener. Smith is subbing for him.

Tigers Defeat, Tie White Sox; Yanks Whip A's, Then Tie 2nd

By JOE REICHLER

Rival American League clubs are beginning to take the amazing Detroit Tigers seriously.

Last Sunday, after the Tigers had blanked the Yanks at Yankee Stadium, New York Manager Casey Stengel called them the most improved club in the league.

Yesterday, after the Tigers had whipped the Chicago White Sox 3-2 in the first game of a double-header and held them to a 10-inning 0-0 standoff in the second game, White Sox Manager Paul Richards voiced Stengel's sentiments.

Today, the Tigers are in first place with 11 victories against only five defeats, a half game in front of Chicago, a full game ahead of Cleveland and two ahead of the defending champion Yankees. They return home with brilliant 5-1 record for their first road tour.

Improved is hardly the word for the Tigers. A complete change is more like it. Tight fielding, timely hitting and superb pitching had given them "the new look."

A year ago today, they were buried in last place with five victories and 18 defeats. They were last in fielding. The pitching was atrocious. The staff had completed only three games.

This year's Tigers are second in fielding. The pitchers, headed by veteran Steven Gromek, own 10 complete games in 17 starts (one tie). They have hurled four shutouts, twice as many as they did last year.

Yesterday's victory was Detroit's eighth in nine road decisions. Last year at this time the Tigers had dropped all seven road games.

In other American League games, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 2-1 in 10 innings, and the Yankees whipped and tied Philadelphia in a double-header. Three home runs gave the Yanks a 7-4 opening-game triumph and rookie Bill Skowron's run-scoring single in the eighth gave them a 1-1 tie in the second game, halted after nine innings on account of darkness. Rain washed out a scheduled double-header between Washington and the Red Sox in Boston.

Brooklyn opened up a half-game lead in the National League, nipping the Philadelphia Phils 2-1 while the secondplace Cincinnati Redlegs split a double-header with St. Louis. The Redlegs came back to win the second game 6-5 after the Cardinals had captured the opener 10-7. The New York Giants walloped Pittsburgh 5-1 and the Chicago Cubs edged out Milwaukee 5-3.

It took Detroit 11 innings to defeat the White Sox in the opener.

The winning run crossed the plate when Cass Michaels committed a throwing error with two out and the bases loaded in the 11th.

Gromek went all the way, giving up nine hits and walking one for his fifth victory without a defeat. Virgil Trucks, who relieved starter Sandy Consuegra in the 10th, was charged with the defeat. Southpaws Billy Hoelt of Detroit and Billy Pierce of Chicago hooked up in the scoreless second-game duel. Pierce fanned 12 to Hoelt's eight.

The Indians missed an opportunity to pass Chicago for the runner-up spot when Turley held them to four hits. Gil Coan's single scored Neil Berry with the run that hung the tough defeat upon At Houtteman.

Home runs by Andy Carey, Yogi Berra and Enos Slaughter accounted for all but one New York run as the Yankees inflicted the first defeat of the season upon Bob Trice, the A's rookie right-hander. Trice had won his first four starts. Skowron's single off Alex Kellner scored Mickey Mantle, who had doubled to wipe out Philadelphia's one-run lead in the nightcap established by ex-Yankee Bill Renna's fifth-inning home run. Carl Erskine outpitched Robin Roberts as the Dodgers swept the three-game series from Philadelphia. Erskine permitted five hits but was in constant hot water with nine bases on balls. Five double plays helped him immeasurably.

The Dodgers snapped a scoreless duel in the seventh when Sandy Amoros doubled in a run and scored on Billy Cox's single. The Phils got one back in the eighth but Jim Hughes replaced Erskine with two on and one out and got Johnny Wyrostek to hit into a double play with his first pitch.

Sal Maglie hurled a six-hitter against the Pirates for his fifth triumph against one defeat. The Giants broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth and added two more in the ninth on Willie Mays' triple.

Home runs by Hank Sauer and Ralph Kiner of Chicago helped Bob Rush defeat Warren Spahn and the Braves.

Ted Kluszewski hammered three home runs and drove in eight runs for the Redlegs. His last homer, the second of the nightcap and ninth of the season, proved the difference in the 6-5 Redleg victory. Stan Musial batted in four runs with his 10th homer and two singles to lead the cards to their first-game victory. Vic Raschi picked up his third triumph without a defeat in the first game although he needed help from Al Brazie in the ninth.

Boros Wins $47,200 In Ardmore Tourney

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—Former National Open champion Julius Boros found himself one of the top money winners on the PGA tournament trail today after collecting $7,200 in the rich Ardmore Open Golf Tournament.

Boros shot rounds of 68-79-72-70 for a one under par 279 to cash in the top prize in Waco Turner's golf extravaganza in which $44,715 was distributed to some of the nation's best golfers.

Boros carried away a total of $7,920 provided by Turner and became the only man in the history of the event to set the pace from start to finish. The extra money came from bonuses.

The sober-faced Mid Pines, N.C., professional won the National Open in 1952 and followed with a triumph in the rich Tam O'Shanter All-American championship in the same year.

He won $4,000 plus extra commitments in the open at Dallas and $19,000 in the Tam O'Shanter at Chicago. The bronze-complexioned North Carolinian started with a two-under par performance over the tough par-70 Dornick Hills County Club course and maintained a steady game to lead a record-breaking field of 16 players.

O'Brien Now Seeks 62-Foot Shot Put

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Having shattered the supposedly impenetrable 60-foot mark in the shot-put with a breath-taking heave of 60 feet 5 1/4 inches, Parry O'Brien heads for the Fresno Relays next Saturday "going for 62 feet."

Asked what the ultimate might be, the handsome Los Angeles giant said after twice officially breaking the 60-foot distance Saturday:

"Eventually we'll be doing 65 feet."

O'Brien has made a science of his specialty. He follows a meticulous training schedule even practicing before a mirror. As a sophomore at the University of Southern California in 1951 he altered the standard shot-putting style by facing to the rear as he started his motion and began from a deeper crouch than was in style. America's 1952 Olympic champion actually broke his own world record three times in a special open shot-put event held in conjunction with the USC-UCLA track meet. Meet officials said all specifications had been met and acceptance of the put as a new record will be sought.

The receipts of $113,242 from the 1954 Minnesota high school basketball tournament were a new high for the state.

FHA Scandal Shows That House Occupants Paid Inflated Rents

Occupants of some housing projects are paying inflated rents as a result of government-insured loans to builders in excess of the actual costs of construction.

The Federal Housing Administration, in general, approved scales of rents for apartments on the basis of the appraisal of replacement costs rather than the actual costs of the project, it was learned today.

Under the program authorized by Section 608, National Housing Act, rentals were designed to bring a return on investment of about 6 1/2 per cent, with an occupancy rate of 93 per cent.

The "replacement cost" figures was used to determine the size of the federal loan as well as the rent scale and was often considerably higher than the actual cost. Thus rents were set to bring a return on an inflated investment base.

Reports of Albert M. Cole, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, indicated that 6,530 projects for which the FHA insured loans amounting to $3,238,055,006 were authorized under Section 608. The section, a wartime measure designed to beat the housing shortage, expired in 1950.

A study by the joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures of some 1,800 of the projects indicates that about 38 per cent received loans in excess of the cost of construction.

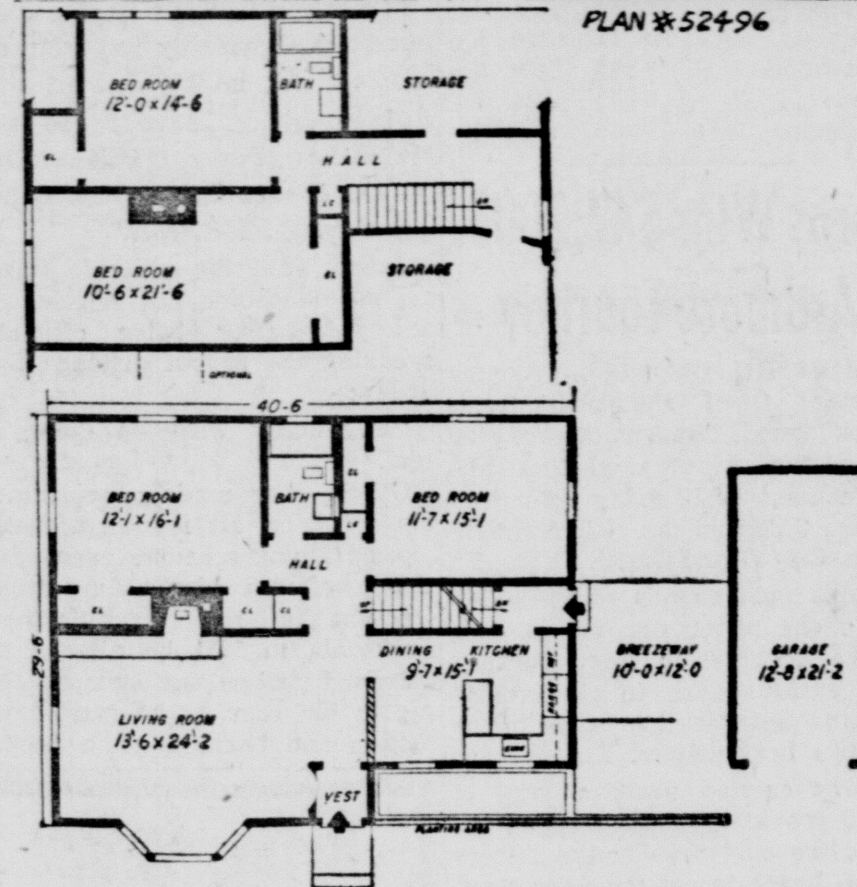

Amounts of the loans in excess of the construction costs were distributed by the housing promoters as "windfall" profits. These profits and other allegations of profiteering in the housing program are under study by two congressional committees and by the administration.

Although the builders contend the "windfall" profits were completely legal under the law, Department of Justice is looking carefully at records of some of the projects. The department apparently is concentrating its search for law infractions in Brooklyn, N.Y. Justice Department agents, it was learned, are studying income-tax returns on 71 projects in that borough.

In some cases, occupants at first paid lower rents than those approved by the FHA because of rent control. When control was removed, rents were increased to the FHA-approved scale.

Sen. Byrd, chairman of the joint committee, said he has asked Cole to make public the names of "those who have profited by receiving guaranteed loans, far in excess of project costs, which have been insured by public credit."

The Virginia senator said prompt disclosure of the names should be made "in fairness and justice to conscientious builders, those paying inflated rents based on profiteer loans and the taxpayers of the United States whose credit has been committed."

ADDING ROOMS for a growing family becomes an economical project in a house like this. It is planned for expansion. The main part of the house can be built first with attic unfinished. Breezeway and garage can be added. Then the house can be enlarged four ways. Basement and attic provide space for several extra rooms. Breezeway and a garage also can be converted for future rooms. This is Plan 52496 designed by Architect Herbert C. Struppman for the Archway Press, 117 W. 48th St., New York 26, N. Y. There are 1,215 square feet on the first floor, 685 feet upstairs.

Gardening This Week

Don't let the bulbs and other spring blooms fade before getting some pictures of the garden — color is almost as easy as black and white. They are not only fun to look at in the winter, but help in planning the garden next year.

Last call for broadcasting larkspur and annual poppy seeds. Most hardy vegetable seeds can go into the ground — provided the ground is dry enough to take them.

Take a walk in the woods and look for wild flowers. But restrain an impulse to pick them or try to transplant them into your own garden. Unless you've a spot where their natural growing conditions can be simulated, the odds are against their surviving.

Thin rows of early lettuce and radishes. They need room to expand.

Start the long mowing season with the lawn equipment in prime condition — blades sharp and adjusted to a proper height of not less than an inch and one-half from the ground.

Look over the garden now and make plans on what you will fill with in the spots now handsome with the blooms of the early bulbs, including tulips. Annuals, of course, are the plants to do the job.

Quizzing the Gardener

Q — How does one get rid of mealy bugs on gardenia foliage?
A — Dab each infestation with a little brush, or cotton on the end of a match, dipped in rubbing alcohol. Then keep the foliage clean by syringing it twice a week with tepid water.

Q — Our iris suffers from a rotting of the roots. What can be done?
A — Plant only in a well-drained soil and scrape away all rotted matter, then spray or dust with bordeaux mixture, or a similar fungicide. Clean and burn all dead or diseased foliage and rot scrapings.

Q — Can you tell me how to get rid of moss? While there are large trees in the yard, there is considerable sunlight.
A — Moss is invariably an indication of an impoverished soil. So fertilize your lawn now with a mixture strong in phosphorus, using four pounds per 100 square feet. Mix with ten times its bulk of sand, spread evenly, and rake in thoroughly. Repeat in mid-summer and again in September.

Q — Our African violets fail to flower after we purchase them at the florists. What causes this?
A — One or more reasons can cause failure, such as lack of sun or fluorescent light, too many leaves in the center of the plants, overwatering and/or a too hot and dry room temperature.

Q — Will asparagus grow well in a heavy clay soil?
A — Unless drainage is perfect, do not plant in clay soil. Asparagus grows best in a sandy loam. Plant in rows three feet apart and set the roots 18 inches apart so that the crowns are four inches below the surface.

Be Careful When Cleaning Your Garden

Loosening or removal of mulch and other organic material about garden perennials must be done with care to avoid cutting off the growing tips of tulips, narcissus, other spring bulbs and lilies.

Old plantings of Japanese anemones, chrysanthemums and phlox require frequent division for best results. This chore should be done as soon as the soil is workable. The old center growth should be discarded and only the young outside divisions replanted.

Three good divisions with well-developed roots and planted eight to 12 inches apart will make a good clump. Iris can be transplanted easily at this time of year — but if you want bloom, do not divide now — wait until August.

Rusts are common on hollyhocks, snapdragons, asters, delphiniums, carnations and many other plants. The reddish brown spots on the leaves and stems are caused by one of the many rust fungi, and, while there is no cure once the plants are attacked, rust can be prevented.

Rust on snapdragons is best avoided by rust-resistant seed. Other rusts are kept under control by application of a fungicide such as Ferra-e, sulphur or a fixed copper. Where rust disease has been serious as it usually is on hollyhocks, removal and burning of infected foliage of plants will prevent a source of infestation.

The pruning of roses should be done within the next two weeks. While there is nothing technical or difficult about the job there is a difference of opinion as to whether to prune heavily, moderately or lightly.

The old gardener is one of the group who prunes moderately, following the advice of Roy Shepherd, famous rosarian and author of "Roses," a dandy book on the queen of flowers.

Shepherd's advice is: remove all deadwood; cut out all weak, useless and diseased wood; shorten the retained growth just enough to shape the plant. To specify a standard height and spread to cut to would be unwise, since the rose family is comprised of widely diversified types.

While removal of only the oldest and poorest canes of climbing roses is necessary the old gardener suggests cutting down the autumn clematis paniculata almost to the ground. It will make rapid growth and bloom more profusely in autumn.

It is now time to start tubers of the tuberous-rooted begonias indoors. Plant them in a box of soil lightened with peat moss and sand. The side of the tuber showing an irregular cavity is the top. Plant them just below the surface and shade the boxes from strong light.

Tails of comets always point away from the sun and scientists believe this is caused by the pressure of light on the material in the tail.

Why Motors Need Separate Circuits

Separate electric circuits are used for most motor operated appliances, such as refrigerators, freezers, electric stoves, power tools in the hobby shop.

The reason is that the instant of starting a motor requires much more power than after it has started to run.

This sudden inrush of current lowers circuit voltage to a point where all lights on the circuit will blink. If the overload is too great the fuse will blow out.

Asphalt Shingles Applied On Top Of Old Material

A new way to save money in putting a new roof on a house is to apply asphalt shingles on top of the old roofing. This can be done in most cases. It saves the expense of tearing the wornout material off.

Another advantage is that the appreciable insulation value of the old roof is retained. The overall roof covering is thicker than if the new material were laid directly on the roof deck.

Sometimes, the old roof must be reconditioned to serve as a sound nailing base for the new asphalt roofing. This is done by replacing rotten shingles, splitting curled shingles and nailing their segments down, and pulling loose nails and re-nailing the shingles they held.

Brushes Vital To Good Paint Job

Right Brush Must Be Used On Each Task

Give your paint job the brush off with a lack of know-how about brushes and — well, you'll wish you brushed up on this subject. You can dip the cat's tail into a can of shellac, but undoubtedly you'll be the one to get the shellacking — not the surface you're working on.

The brush you use for each paint job, and how you use it, are as important as the quality of paint — and sometimes more so. You can get a can of paint for a small job for a buck or two and ruin a brush that costs three or four times that much. Or you can use a cheap brush and ruin the job.

From experience, we can say that the only sensible use for a cheap little brush is to apply tree paint to a bulldozer scar — and for that a paddle is acceptable.

A good paint brush is one of the finest of tools. At the same time, it is one of the most complicated to handle. To get the best results, you can use a brush only for the jobs for which it is made — a flat brush for flat surfaces, a round or oval brush for round surfaces, a narrow brush for small surfaces and tight places. And it's up to you to take care of your brushes.

A GOOD PAINTER, one worthy to be called a decorator, one who works in homes where woodwork is treated like furniture, will use an old brush for the first and second coats and a new brush for the finish coat. But that new brush will not be the way it came out of the store. It will be cured and possibly broken in.

All new brushes are bound to have a few loose bristles. You can bring them out in two ways. First, twirl the handle rapidly between your hands. Second, after preparing the brush by an oil soak, paint a dozen strokes or so across a rough surface. This trial course will bring out any loose hairs that didn't show up in the dry run.

The oil bath is very important to a new brush. It will lengthen the life of the brush, make it easier to clean and improve its working qualities by preventing the porous bristles from absorbing the pigment particles or thinners.

HERE'S HOW to give a new paint brush its christening in oil. This is a method recommended by the Paint and Varnish Brush Manufacturers Association. It is prescribed for bristle brushes as well as those of bristle and synthetic fiber mixture.

Take a piece of heavy wrapping paper about five times the width of the brush and twice the length of the bristles plus the metal or leather ferrule. Fold the paper around the width of the brush. Then fold the paper from the edge of the bristle back to the top of the ferrule, being careful not to bend the bristle. Cellulose tape will hold the ends of the wrapper together.

Hang the wrapped brush in a container of raw linseed oil, supporting the handle to keep the brush upright. The oil should be deep enough to cover the wrapper and flow into it, so the full length of the bristle will be soaked.

The brush is left in this bath for 24 hours. But the longer it stays in the oil, the better.

SINCE WASHING is only part of a bath, this baby requires a rub down. Stretch a wire across the top of the car and draw the flat side of the bristles against it to remove the oil. Or hold the brush on a clean flat surface and squeeze the oil out with a round stick or screw driver.

Another twirl is now in order. Hold the brush in a clean empty can and give it a spin between the hands to throw off remaining oil. Then rinse it in turpentine, dipping it several times. A third twirl will remove the turps.

When you are sure the bristles are dry, comb them and smooth them into their original shape with a steel comb.

Now you have a brush that will stay flexible and give you faster and smoother spreading of paint. But try it out on that rough surface for any remaining loose bristles.

Stay Out Of Garden When Soil Is Wet

By HENRY FREE
Written for NEA Service
Don't plant or sow seed if the soil is too wet. Let a mud ball tell you when it's time to begin preparing the soil in your vegetable garden this spring. A lot of gardeners, anxious to get started, are going to get under way too soon, says the old gardener.

Such early birds are likely to begin operations when the soil is still too wet. Early work on the soil presses it together so that roots of seedlings can't penetrate it later.

Even when the top layer can be worked, there is sometimes the danger that it is too wet an inch or so below the surface. A good test is to pick up a handful of dirt from your garden and squeeze it. If it forms a solid ball of mud it is still too wet to work. When the ball is crumbly, even though damp, then it's time to grab the garden tools and start swinging.

If you are using a commercial fertilizer, broadcast it over the surface, and work it in. Or you can use your commercial fertilizer as a "side dressing" placing it in bands along the rows.

On soil that has been in cultivation for several years, or has been in sod, a commercial fertilizer is particularly valuable. You'll have to be prepared to fight cutworms in such soil, too.

Vegetables which should be planted just as soon as the ground can be prepared are asparagus, beets, carrots, lettuce, radishes, parsnips, peas, potatoes, rhubarb, Swiss chard, onion sets and cabbage plants. Be careful to cover seeds at exactly the recommended depth.

Maybe you're thinking of what might be done this spring to improve the home grounds. The best plan is a grassed area in the front yard with shrubs around the house. Small flowering trees or low-growing evergreens planted at the foundation of the house seem to make the house belong to its location. Only a few shrubs are needed; it's placing that counts.

Consider, first of all, when you're choosing shrubs, the height they'll be when grown. Greatest height should be at the corners of the house, with smaller plantings at the entrance. Avoid plantings that will block windows.

In a border, the tallest plants should be in the back. The sun or shade and the amount of moisture needed, as well as resistance to insect pests and diseases, enter in.

You'll also want to think of the density, shape and color and bloom of shrubs you choose.

This is the season of the year when swindlers victimize homeowners with rackets in the garden sphere — fake fertilizers or top-dressing, cheap lawn seeds, tree treatments, etc.

Sometimes an itinerant peddler tells a housewife her husband has ordered one or another of the cation or does some work and above, makes some sort of application collects an exorbitant charge from the embarrassed housewife, who may be too timid to put up an argument.

Treatment Preserves Exterior Woodwork

bine the best qualities of nature and science by treating ponderosa pine exterior doors and windows with a water repellent preservative in accordance with standards of the National Woodwork Manufacturers Association, Inc.

The preservative effectively reduces shrinking and checking of wood during dry weather, and during wet weather it retards swelling and warping. Treated doors and windows are less likely to stick, and paint is less likely to blister.

Your house will appear taller and wider than it actually is if you take advantage of the extra dimension of color.

Light-colored asphalt shingles are well suited to modern one-story houses, because they draw the eye upward emphasizing the height and creating an impression of importance. Because the roof is usually the largest unbroken area of a house, it is the key to the whole color plan. The roof color should be chosen first.

The next step is to choose harmonizing siding, also in a light color. To emphasize the bright roofing and siding, doors should be in dark, contrasting hues. This gives much the same effect as wearing a dark tie with a light-colored suit. The illusion of greater size will be increased if trim paint matches siding.

To make this ranch-style home look larger than it really is, the color designer relied on pastel roofing and siding in a blending color. Exterior colors, as indicated by numbers, are: The roof (1) is pastel russet asphalt shingles. Sidewalls (2) are coral. Trim (3) is light gray, and the accent color on the door (4) is peacock.

For this small contemporary dwelling, the illusion-creating colors are: The roof (1) is brown asphalt roofing. Siding (2) is a blending light brown. Trim (3) is off-white. The accent color (4) is willow.

Fixit Forum

Q — Is there any way to make screws "bite" in wood or plaster holes which have become too large?

A — Yes, Roll steel wool into a long, narrow wad and force it into the hole with a pencil. The screw will turn into the steel wool, taking a firm grip.

Q — My roof has been repaired several times recently, but new leaks continue to appear. How can this be corrected so that I can rely on the roof to keep out rain?

A — Your trouble is that your roof is so old and weathered that patching is futile and you need a complete reroofing job. H. R. Snoko of the National Bureau of Standards says that "a single apparent leak in a badly weathered roof is probable evidence of other similar leaks that have not been noticed and is usually the forerunner of other, larger leaks that will appear in a relatively short time." He points out that reroofing is the only solution when repair is not

Q — What steps should be taken to preserve a piano?
A — The piano should be placed so both its ends are equally distant from a radiator, a register, or a stove. It should not be placed near a window frequently left open for long periods. Every effort should be made to keep the piano in a dry area because dampness will rust the metal parts and swell the action.

Agents Busy On Threat To Kill Ike

Negro Reports Pair Asked His Aid On Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower didn't know it, but Secret Service agents spent a busy weekend investigating a reported threat to assassinate him.

Secret Service chief U. E. Baughman says of the report now that he is "satisfied there was nothing to it." But he reached that conclusion only after his men had worked long hours checking every angle, he said.

The report Baughman got was that there would be an attempt on Eisenhower's life yesterday afternoon at Fredericksburg, Va., where the chief executive drove to place a wreath at the grave of Mary Ball Washington, mother of the nation's first President. Fredericksburg is about 45 miles south of Washington.

The Mother's Day ceremony, witnessed by several thousand people standing in the rain, went off without incident.

And it wasn't until after the President and Mrs. Eisenhower had started back to Washington that Fredericksburg Police Chief A. G. Kendall told of the "threat" to kill the President and of the precautions taken to prevent it.

Kendall told newsmen a Negro man he termed "reliable" visited Fredericksburg police headquarters Saturday and said he had been approached with plans to "knock the President off." Kendall declined to name the man, saying that to do so might place him in danger.

He quoted the man as saying he had been approached by two other men who asked him if he wanted to make $500. The police chief quoted his informant as saying the pair showed him a rifle with telescopic sights and told him they planned to shoot the President from a rooftop.

Kendall said the man arranged to meet the pair again Saturday night, then came to police with the story, and was told to keep the rendezvous. But he lost his nerve, Kendall continued, and police located him and kept him in protective custody overnight.

Kendall said he communicated with the Secret Service as soon as the man came to police.

He said the informant was "questioned, questioned and questioned, but we couldn't break his story down."

"Even now," he said, "we don't know if his story was true or not true."

Baughman is not in direct charge of the White House Secret Service detail, but he frequently makes out-of-town trips with the President. He made the one yesterday and when he got back to Washington he confirmed the account Kendall gave.

Baughman said his agents thoroughly checked the report and questioned the man who made it, working all Saturday night and into Sunday morning.

"I'm satisfied there was nothing to it," he said, adding "it's a question of the reliability" of the man who made the report to the Fredericksburg police.

In response to a question, Baughman said neither the President nor Mrs. Eisenhower knew anything about the reported threat.

He said the Secret Service gets "quite a few" such reports and that all of them are checked just as carefully.

He said he had "only a couple of extra men" from the secret ranks on duty at the Fredericksburg ceremony, but that the city had a force of about 60 police officers on hand at the monument grounds and in the vicinity.

Mary Ball Washington College supplied about the same number of auxiliary police women.

The Eisenhowers were at the monument grounds less than 15 minutes and there were no noticeable signs of any extraordinary precautions. Only the usual single car of Secret Service agents had accompanied the President on the drive from Richmond, Va., where he and the First Lady had attended church services during the morning. The Eisenhowers flew to Richmond from Washington.

After placing the wreath at Fredericksburg, Eisenhower made a brief talk to his rain-soaked audience from an elevated platform. He was in full view of the big crowd which, it developed later, was under closer-than-usual scrutiny by the Secret Service and the police.

FOUR COLUMBIANA High seniors, Carol Calvin, Donald Gleckler, David Evans, and John Patchen, and two juniors, Pat Poulton and James Warrick, have been selected by the faculty to receive National Honor Society pins at the assembly next Friday.

Awards are made on the basis of scholarship, service, leadership and character.

Thursday, May 20, Columbiana seniors, along with Fairfield High seniors, are scheduled for an all-day tour of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.'s plant in Akron as guests of the Columbiana Rotary Club. Class day will be observed at 1 p.m. Friday, May 21.

Women's Children Born On Mothers Day, '53, '54

CINCINNATI (AP)—Last Mother's Day Mrs. Betty Albers of Cincinnati gave birth to her first child, a girl.

The second child, a boy, came yesterday, Mother's Day, 1954.

IT SAYS "STOP". New red stop signs, like the one held by the comely Highway Department employee pictured above, are being placed at strategic locations throughout Ohio. C. W. McCaughey, the Highway Department's Deputy Director of Operations, said that the new, recently approved stop signs, will replace old-type yellow signs at intersections where they are most needed. Eventually, some 30,000 signs will be replaced over the next few years. "The yellow stop signs are still legal and in force," McCaughey reminded.

2 Escaped Prisoners Nabbed In Steubenville

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Two prisoners who cut their way through a 14-inch brick wall at Jefferson County jail, then went home, were back in jail today. They escaped early yesterday by hacking through the wall with the leg from a steel cot.

They were identified as John W. Taylor, 23, of Mount Pleasant, and Arthur J. Crawford, 24, of near Dillonvale. Both made their escape through a hole 22 inches square. They were captured later near their homes.

Chief deputy Dennis McGonigle said the pair escaped from the jail "bull pen." Other prisoners there declined to take part in the break, he added.

61 BABIES BORN

CLEVELAND (AP)—Sixty-one babies were born in Cleveland area hospitals yesterday, Mother's Day.
